Who's the editor? Who is the creator? I don't know. I have two proof sheets and a powerpoint presentation, and half a handful of layouts and various notes. All I know is it was created through a mixture of impulse and practice, and honestly it only really started to flow from the top of my brain down to my fingertips around 20 hours in. Why do I want to put this out? What do I want the player to feel? I wanted to make a game with the power of frustration, to make the player feel powerless. I also wanted to do something about of my own personal imperfection, and the fact that I'm not at the level of anyone I watch on youtube. So I created Frog Fall Down. Who should play this game? Anyone who likes platformers. Anyone who likes puzzle platformers. Anyone who likes games with a mix of simple and complex mechanics. Anyone who wants to try their hand at the mechanics of pure platforming, but doesn't know where to start. Anyone who likes a game where the user is meant to feel imprecise and uncreative. Anyone who likes games where you feel punished for attempting to do well. Anyone who likes games where the game is able to be greater than you. Anyone who likes games that are one mistake away from being an unplayable mess. Anyone who likes games that are designed to let you learn from your mistakes, in the same way you learn from your mistakes. *(All of this is my opinion, and by no means will I take down any comments that criticize it. Do not take this as a general guideline for making anything, instead just for this game specifically. I'm making it like this just because people can do different things as long as it's consistent, and because I need to teach myself by doing different things. This is just a way to get a game out there. If anyone disagrees with anything in the above statement, please don't take it personal. This was just something I figured out as I went on.)* License: Frog Fall Down is Copyright May 2014 ArtKiel Developments, and Copyright May 2016 ArtKiel Productions. All rights reserved. You can play this game in whatever way you want, but remember that the game isn't intended to be a challenge, nor is it meant to be hard. If you think the game is hard, just look for the right way to be punished, and you'll find it.

How to Choose Fabric for Cushions If you're new to the idea of decorating with fabric, you might be a little bit baffled about how to choose a fabric to make your cuddly pillows. Here are some tips for making the best choice! Check the thickness and weight of the fabric. Even though a fabric may not be thick enough to fit under a chair, it could still be too heavy for the material to handle. Go for a fabric that's lighter than the amount of weight you'd normally expect from pillows. Remember that the fabric you choose might make your pillows fade faster if they get a lot of use.
