A rapid and facile synthesis of superhydrophobic and superoleophilic SiO_2 and polystyrene nanowires is reported. The diameters of the SiO_2 nanowires are about 9 nm and the length of the nanowires is about 20 microm, while those of the PS nanowires are about 33 nm and the length is about 30 microm. The nanowires show high mechanical strength with tensile fracture strength ranging from 2.2 to 5.6 MPa and fracture strength in bending from 0.6 to 1.9 MPa. The superhydrophobic behavior was explained on the basis of the nanowire morphology. The superoleophilic behavior can be ascribed to the strong chemical binding of the hydrophilic PS nanowires with silica nanowires.1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to the purification of crude oil or hydrocarbonaceous material.
