This is one step forward for the Photoshop and I am very happy with the effort of the update. Cosmetic updates are just that. Think of the titles being rendered as out of the rectangle or within the rectangle. So it's not so much about making the whole rectangle fit all the way around; it's much more about making sure each rectangle gets the information it needs. Designers often need to make one rectangle fit into another, one or two even smaller rectangles. So this update is very helpful for a designer. Major updates like this need to be tested more thoroughly. I created a series of rectangles to make sure the two changes worked as I'd expect them to. You can add any kind of text to any image by using this beautiful tool. You can control the style, text format, and add different formatting to your image. You can use blue text for your ads, news and other magazines and newspapers. ColorCorrect is set to remove red and green from blue hues and add more red and green to yellow, while also uplifting colors such as orange or purple. One more option must be selected to indicate how much of a “pop” the technique will have: less pop, more pop, or undo this setting. When you save your changes, the operation is recorded in the history. (You can’t undo the removal of red and green from blue.) In most cases, other selective color adjustments will also remove red and green from blue. The image used in this article was created by Alfredo Sanson. Alfredo's Pixlr website allows users to add elements (the logotype, the brushes) to their photos. Alfredo's post about the Photoshop Lighting Effects tutorial can be found here: <https://pixlr.com/editorial/photoshop-lighting-effects-tutorial/> Before you begin, you can check most of Elements properties by using a dedicated browser or by right-clicking the image and selecting “Open with Elements.” The browser allows you to adjust the image’s resolution, color depth (or color space), aspect ratio and image size and crop the frame. You can also select the image in the browser and adjust brightness, contrast, saturation, sharpening and a few other tweaks. Some Color Correct settings are only available when you are saving an image. You can’t modify Color Correct settings while you’re working in the editor. In general, I like to save a color-corrected image to a file format that’s compatible with the file format I’ll be saving the original file to.
